Mauser M38

Short Rifle Cal. 6.5 x 55mm

By the 1930s, it had been proven that the long Infantry rifle was unnecessary and often a hindrance to the troops to which they were issued. Sweden began to shorten the barrels of some M96 rifles to a more efficient length. When this proved successful, the Husqvarna Works was contracted to produce the rifle for general issue. Retaining the accuracy of the M96, the M38 has proven a popular choice for hunting medium game.
